

FIFA places media rights in US and Canada until 2026

FIFA has extended its media rights agreements in the United States and Canada for its tournaments up to and including the 2026 FIFA World Cup™. These extensions give Fox (English language) and NBCUniversal's Telemundo (Spanish language) in the United States and CTV/TSN in Canada exclusive broadcast rights to FIFA competitions during this period.

The extended agreements cover the following tournaments in addition to the 2026 FIFA World Cup: FIFA Women's World Cup 2023, FIFA U-20 World Cup 2023 and 2025, FIFA U-17 World Cup 2023 and 2025, FIFA Beach Soccer World Cup 2023 and 2025, FIFA Futsal World Cup 2024, FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup 2024 and 2026, FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup 2024 and 2026, and FIFA Confederations Cup 2025.

"These agreements guarantee wide distribution for FIFA tournaments across the US and Canada. Together, we will be able to further promote football in North America and build on the impressive interest shown by audiences in these major territories during the 2014 FIFA World Cup," said FIFA Director of TV Niclas Ericson.
