PGA TOUR releases 2025 FedExCup Season schedule

Second year of reimagined schedule to deliver heightened drama and consequence for fans, with eight Signature Events complementing THE PLAYERS Championship, the four majors and the FedExCup Playoffs

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Florida – The PGA TOUR today announced the 2025 FedExCup Regular Season and FedExCup Playoffs schedule, a 39-event slate that marks year two of the TOUR's new competitive model. A combination of Full-Field and Signature Events offers heightened drama and consequence for fans — plus life-changing moments for the game's biggest and newest stars — each week across the FedExCup Season.

The 36-event FedExCup Regular Season schedule features the 51st playing of THE PLAYERS Championship in March, the four major championships, eight Signature Events, 18 Full-Field Events and five Additional Events. The three-event FedExCup Playoffs follow during the month of August, with the FedExCup Champion crowned once again at the TOUR Championship. The 2025 FedExCup Fall, which will finalize eligibility for the 2026 season, will be announced at a later date.

Continuing on past success, the TOUR schedule will be fully sponsored — which includes the recently announced partnership with Truist — a seven-year agreement with the PGA TOUR's Charlotte-based event, now known as the Truist Championship.
