Cliff

After PETA U.K. caught wind that the Royal Loft was auctioning off three pigeons at the British Homing World Show of the Year, a team swooped in and won the bid to prevent the trio from suffering in the racing industry. Instead of being used as breeding machines so that their offspring could be forced to race—struggling against storms, exhaustion, disorientation, starvation, predation, and collisions with power lines—Cliff, Vera, and Dover are now treated like royalty at a trusted sanctuary.
